

Any cut will have an effect on students

The loss of more than 200 teaching positions across Nova Scotia this year will not only affect your child's education today but her opportunities for tomorrow.

Either the Dexter government doesn't understand the needs of students or simply doesn't care.

Another $5-million blow to the Cape Breton economy

The loss of 63 teaching positions in Cape Breton is not just a setback for our students but a blow to our local economy.

In terms of salary and economic spin-offs, these cuts will cost businesses in our struggling communities millions of dollars per year.

Who gets hurt when we cut education funding?

Any dedicated young teacher losing her job? Any child denied access to one-on-one help in larger classes? Or maybe it's the local economy losing $18 million in wages and spinoffs?

No, the fact is we all lose. We lose opportunities for our children that can never be replaced. We lose our chance to participate in the knowledge economy. We lose a bright future.

We all hurt.

How to erase $18 million in economic activity...

First, go after the children. Cut 228 teaching positions. Yank those salaries and the resulting economic spinoff from our communities.

Mission accomplished. Well, not quite.

We still have to bear the cost of compromising our children's education.
